A vintage photograph of a group of hippies walking outdoors. The image is slightly faded and has a warm, brownish tint. In the foreground, a man with a large afro and a woman with long, wavy hair are visible. They are surrounded by other people, some of whom are wearing colorful, patterned clothing. The background shows trees and a dirt path. Overlaid on the center of the image is the title text in large, white, bold, sans-serif capital letters.

CLOSING THOUGHTS

“And it seems to me perfectly in the cards that there will be within the next generation or so a pharmacological method of making people love their servitude, and producing ... a kind of painless concentration camp for entire societies, so that people will in fact have their liberties taken away from them but will rather enjoy it, because they will be distracted from any desire to rebel by propaganda, brainwashing, or brainwashing enhanced by pharmacological methods.”

Aldous Huxley, 1959

“Through clever and constant application of propaganda people can be made to see paradise as hell, and also the other way around, to consider the most wretched sort of life as paradise.”

Adolf Hitler, Mein Kampf, 1923

“If ignorance is truly bliss, then why do so many Americans need Prozac?”

Dave McGowan, 2000
